In the wake of financial crises, rising inequality and inflation, criticism of capitalism and the market economy has intensified in recent years. Tendentially socialist solutions appear more and more attractive to many people. In his lecture, Prof. Boettke will revisit the classic debate between capitalism and socialism and update the discussion to address advances in technology as well as historical circumstances. He will then discuss the relevance of the classic debate for the future of market capitalism and liberal economic policy.

Peter J. Boettke is Vice President for Advanced Study, Director of the F. A. Hayek Program for Advanced Study in Philosophy, Politics, and Economics, as well as the BB&T Professor for the Study of Capitalism at the Mercatus Center at George Mason University, and a University Professor of Economics and Philosophy at George Mason University. He is also non-resident faculty at the Diplomatische Akademie Wien-Vienna School of International Studies. From 2016-2018, he served as president of the Mont Pelerin Society.
